Round Hill Water-Cure, Northampton, Mass. Round Hill Water-Cure, Northampton, Mass.—
The fame of this celebrated establishment is now so extensively diffused, by the associated it reatment which invalids of all classes have received at the hands of Dr HALSTED, that it is hardly necessary to call attention to his method of treatment. There is no State in the Un'on, and acready a city or town of any prominence, among whose inhabitants the proprietor of Round Hill Water Cure may not count his patients, to whom the Doctor refers in his circular as the best mode of satisfying strangers of his success in the treatment of invalids. In all the local advantages which render attractive an institution for invalids, Round Hill stands alone and unrivaled Jenny Lind, after a three months' residence, called it the 'Paradise of America'"—, Newark Journal.

D A N G E R S.—

Railroads has been established in this country, there have, in all probability, been losses by accident to the extent of twenty millions et doilars. These have been clear, about le losses to the community—as much as as properly destroyed by fire or sunk in the ceems. But these disasters have been of a peculiar character, and in the main not those of fire or flood; they have arisen from the ordinary conditions of a railroad train in progress; they have been on caused by the inherent momentum that is a necessary property of great masses of matter in motion.

A Railroad Train is exposed to peculiar danger from this cause. Its track of iron and level grade are both made for the burpose of allowing its free progress, and the very case and freedom of motion aggravate the danger of momentum.

Again, a Railroad is intended as a means of rayld transit for persons and property, and the component parts of a locomotive and cars for travel on rails rapidly, are made necessarily heavy and strong—If otherwise, they would soon shake to pleeds. If collows, then, that weight, case of motion, freedom from obstruction, and rayld transit, all conduce powerfully to create momentum. From securate calculations; it is found that the effective momentum of a train of six cars and an engine is equal to a force of 700 tuns. The truth of this statement is pairfully self-evident at a sudden collision or obstruction. This FEARFUL DANGER WHICH 18 EVER PRESENT.

encurve momentum of a train of six care and an engine is equal to a force of 700 tuns. The truth of this statement is pairfully self-evident at a endden colliden or obstruction. This FRARFUL DANGER WHICH IS EVER PRESENT to a train is only partially recognized by Railread officials. It is, however, understood to some extent, and each car is provided with brakes, or blocks, arranged to press against the wheels by the action of the brakeman. This plan works very well for the usual stoppages of a train, when sufficient solice is given to the brakeman by the engineer; but for those cases of danger which have arisen, and will arise, in spite of the most rigid scrutiny, it is notoriously inefficient, as all experience proves.

It is of no use for an officer to say that nothing can happen to "our" train. There is not a moment that a train is in motion but that it is exposed to dangers which a perfect control would prevent, and there should not be an instant of time in which a train is running but that the facilities should he at band for an instant, simultaneous and powerful application of the retarding applicances of every car.

but that it is exposed to dampers which a perirect control would prevent, and there should not be an instant of time in which a private prevent, and there should not be an instant, simultaneous and powerful applicances of the related applicances of every car.

It is not the custom on many roads to employ more than one brakeman to two or three cars, and on some not more than one brakeman to two or three cars, and on some not more than one brakeman to two or three cars, and on some not more than one brakeman to seach two cars. We hold that there should be one to every car, and that a mechanical brakeman is weatly more reliable than one of flesh and show the control of the co
